Weekly Inspirational Corner

(Sponsored by an Irma Times reader)

Lift up your eyes to the heavens, and look upon the earth beneath: for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke, and the earth shall wax old like a garment, and they that dwell therein shall die in like manner: but my salvation shall be forever, and my righteousness shall not be abolished. Hearken unto me, ye that know righteousness, the people in whose heart is my law, fear ye not the reproach of men, neither be ye afraid of their revilings.

For the moth shall eat them up like a garment, and the worm shall eat them like wool: but my righteousness shall be for ever, and my salvation from generation to generation.

Isaiah 51:6-8.

CELEBRATE SILVER ANNIVERSARY

On Monday evening, November 5, a number of friends and relatives gathered in the Legion Hall for the purpose of celebrating the Silver Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Obert Inglis.

They were escorted into the room by Mrs. Albert Knudson to the strains of "Here Comes The Bride" played on the piano by Mrs. C. Pyle, and then seated at a table laid in white linen with vases of mixed flowers. In the centre was a beautiful two tier wedding cake made by Mrs. Eldon Fenton and decorated by Mrs. Jimmie Tindall. Six members of the family came in and were seated evenly on each side of their parents. Mr. Inglis, acting as M. of C., gave a short speech of welcome to the guests of honor.

A short program proceeded with two lovely selections sung by the Sampson sisters accompanied by Della Mae Symington at the piano. Mrs. Symington gave a balloon contest which was much enjoyed by all and caused lots of noise. Miss Audrey Jones rendered two nice selections on the accordion which were very delightful. Mr. Inglis in his very jovial manner, told several jokes in between parts of the program which were fitting to the occasion. A song written by Mrs. Hurst especially for the occasion to the tune of My Blue Heaven was sung by all, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Pyle. This was indeed a very pleasant feature and many thanks are extended to Maude for this particular part. Mr. and Mrs. Lovig certainly enjoyed it and had several laughs over some of the verses in the song.

Mrs. McLean in her very pleasant manner, favored us with a laughable reading—"Little Red Riding Hood". A short sing-song then followed to fill out the program. Mr. Inglis then called on Mrs. Albert Knudson on behalf of all friends to make a presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Lovig of a purse of money. Mrs. Irma Guy on behalf of the LOBA presented Mrs. Lovig with a silver tea service and tray, for which she quite aptly thanked everyone and invited all present to come and try out the tea service in her home. Obert then thanked everyone on their behalf for the purse of money. Miss Audrey Jones then favored the company with several selections on the accordion while the hostesses Mrs. Knudson, Mrs. Guy, Mrs. Pyle and Mrs. Fenton prepared coffee. Some of the members of the LOBA and several from the Junior W.A. served a delicious lunch. Everyone joined hands and sang For They Are Jolly Good Fellows and Mr. and Mrs. Lovig were the recipients of many further congratulations before all present left for home.

Vermilion Livestock Sale
Saturday, November 10 is the date. There is a good entry of cattle and swine. This could be a good chance to pick up some quality breeding stock without going too far.

Farm Safety
The start of colder weather is often the start of a series of farm fires. Chimneys should be checked and properly cleaned at least every fall. This is even more important where fuels such as oil and propane are being used. Another cause of trouble is lighting fires with gasoline or kerosene. This causes many serious fires. Extension cords can be a hazard, avoid using them as much as possible and make sure that when they are used that they are safe and not likely to cause a short circuit through broken insulation or broken wire. Steps get icy and slippery, keep them cleaned off to prevent nasty falls.

Protect Trees
Trees are supposed to protect us, but some of them stand as fruit trees, shrubs and newly established evergreens can stand a bit of help. Now that all growth is stopped for this year, a good watering will go a long way toward bringing the trees through the winter in good shape. Where there are a lot of trees, naturally this cannot be done but it may be possible to spread some straw along the row to catch snow and keep it around the trees.

Farrowing Crate for Swine
Survival of young pigs can be increased by use of a farrowing crate to prevent crushing of the little pigs. A crate also makes it easy to use heat lamps, feed supplemental iron and remove eye teeth. Sows are usually put in the crate a day before farrowing and kept in for about three days afterwards.

Northern Nuggets

Mrs. Robin Johnson and wee Alan are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Loades and family in Kinross.

Little Jimmy Bars is at present in the Mannville hospital having his tonsils removed. We predict that Jimmy and his sunny smile will make many friends during his brief stay.

Card of Thanks

Many thanks to all the kind friends who sent fruit, flowers, cards, letters etc., during the three weeks I spent in Wainwright hospital. Your thoughtfulness has helped me so much and is deeply appreciated.

FAREWELL FOR STOCKTON FAMILY

A farewell supper and party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alf Larson October 20 in honor of the Stockton family, who are leaving the Ross district.

About 9 p.m. friends and neighbors arrived for the evening. Mrs. Earl Burr took charge of the program consisting of games, contests and musical numbers. The highlight of the evening was Charlie's egg problem. Earl, being a farmer, got to work and after an hour of figuring solved the problem.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostesses Mrs. Alf Larson, Mrs. Earl Burr and Mrs. A. C. Archibald.

Mrs. E. Burr spoke a few words, remarking how the Stocktons would be missed in the district, as they were always willing to lend a helping hand to all. She asked them to accept a purse of money from their Ross neighbors. Ted replied, thanking them all and asked them to call and see them in their new home.

The evening closed with singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and best wishes for the future from all.

HELLO HOMEMAKERS

Now that November is here, CHRISTMAS is the event which occupies our minds. What to give. To whom? are problems encountered every year. And every year these problems are just as puzzling as the last year.

Now is the time when Christmas cakes and puddings should be made. Store them well wrapped in a crockery jar in a cool place. The cake will become moist and the flavor will be delicious.

Encourage your children to make gifts to give to their special friends. If they are going to make them, they'd better get started soon to avoid the last minute rush.

Storing Summer Clothes

When you store these summer clothes, be sure they are clean. Though you'll have to iron them in the spring, launder them before storing. Dirt weakens the fibres and is harder to remove after storage.

Did You Know—

That parsley is an excellent source of Vitamins even in the small amount used as a garnish. Why not plant some and use it for a little extra flavour in salads and main meals?

That liver and other organ meats are a richer source of iron and other food essentials. What's more they're good eating. I have some recipes to prove it. Want them? Just write and ask for "Variety Meat Recipes."

That the Imperial quart—used here in Canada equals five 8 oz. cups. The American quart is only 4 cups. Don't forget that when using American recipes.

Tip For The Week

If you splash paint on glass or mirrors here's a tip. Heat strong vinegar to as hot as your hand can stand. Dip cloth in hot vinegar and wipe paint stains. You'll find the paint removes easily.

TURKEY SHOOT NOVEMBER 14

EASTERLY ECHOES

We were all shocked to hear of the death of Mr. Wes Bacon (Alf Bacon's brother) on Friday of last week. While he was away on a hunting trip he was suddenly taken ill. Our sympathy to the rest of the family.

Mr. Stuart Fenton attended the Harold Paul Purebred Hereford Sale at Namoo.

Mr. Harold Doolson left for Edmonton Friday of last week where he hopes to obtain employment for the winter.

Miss Joyce Cook spent the week-end with her folks, Mr. and Mrs. A. Cook.

Don't forget the Variety Program at Paschendale school on Friday, November 16, sponsored by the Sew and So Club.

Card of Thanks

The Canadian Girls in Training wish to say a special thanks for the warm reception and kind donations received Halloween night, October 31. Total proceeds amount to $55.00. This sum will go to help thousands of the world's underprivileged children who are suffering from hunger, disease and lack of proper child care. Twins born 50 miles apart

To a twenty-nine-year-old London man has fallen the experience of becoming a father again twelve days after his wife had her first baby. His wife has had twins. But the first was born at 12:50 a.m. on May 18th and the second didn't arrive until 8 a.m. on May 30th.

The twenty-eight-year-old wife was told about the twins a week before she gave birth to her first, a boy weighing 4 pounds 6 ounces at birth. After his birth, the father camped on the hospital doorstep all day. After that he phoned the hospital every hour for six days non-stop. Then he took to making several visits a day.

What's the record birth delay in the case of twins? The British Medical Association says it is probably held by twins born in Strasbourg in 1864, with an interval of 137 days between them. The first arrived on April 30th, the second on September 12th.

Proud father Bernard Schnees had just cradled his new-born daughter in 1955 when he got a shock. The doctor told him: "You're going to be a father again, in about two months." He was right. Forty-eight days after baby Deborah was born to Mrs. Schnees—at Delaware, U.S.—Douglas, an equally bonny baby, arrived.

Delays of this kind are usually due to different weights of the babies, say doctors.

In Scotland, in 1934, twins were born fifty miles apart at an interval of two days. The mother gave birth to the first baby at her home on the island of Scarpa, Invernesshire and was attended by an elderly neighbor.

No doctor was available at the same day the mother carried on a stretcher across the island to the sea, journeyed four miles in a boat to the neighboring island of Harris, and travelled another fifteen miles by car over rough forest roads to Tarbert.

There she was given medical aid, but she was told she must enter hospital at Stornoway, which she did the following day after a further car journey of thirty miles. Her second baby was born there forty-eight hours after the first and after she had travelled fifty miles.

Bay route imports up

Imports of general cargo via the Hudson Bay Route this year were up more than 50 percent over those of 1955, according to W. J. Hens, director of trade information services in the Saskatchewan Department of Co-operation.

Import cargo through the northern port was mainly for destinations in Saskatchewan, he said.

Total general cargo imports for the two inward sailings of the Dalgleish Line amounted to 2,314 tons in the 1956 shipping season. Six main groups of commodities accounted for 78 percent of the import tonnage: window glass, liquor, pipes and fittings, machinery, chemicals, and telephone materials.

Other groups of commodities, accounting for 19 percent of the 1956 import tonnage, were: bone meal, building materials, office furniture, castings, confectionery, cutting stones, paving tiles, glazed tiles and chinaware.

A miscellaneous group of commodities accounted for three percent of the tonnage, viz: toys, hardware, textiles, linoleum, special cases, biscuits, bicycles, soap and footwear.

With the exception of the window glass from Belgium, all other imported goods were from the United Kingdom.

Items which were imported via the Bay Route in 1955, and which did not recur in 1956 were: steel bars, valves, wire fencing and shot gun shells.

"One-shot" imports for Churchill, Manitoba in 1955, included 2,030 tons of Portland cement for the extension to the terminal elevator and a complete hangar building for Arctic Wings Ltd.

"The wide assortment and range of imported merchandises attained in 1956, is favorable to increased tonnage of imports via the Bay Route in the 1957 shipping season," Mr. Hens said.

The Bay Route is particularly favorable for commodities having a low value per unit weight and for products requiring the late fall and early winter season of merchandising. While the ocean freight rates are now equalized as between the Gulf of Mexico and Churchill is 1,000 miles nearer to Saskatchewan destinations than

Bargain prices will buy romantic castle on Rhine

By OMER ANDERSON
(CPC Correspondent)

Did you know you can buy a romantic Rhine castle at bargain prices. You can even have it exported abroad. The 5,000 duels, counts and barons along the Rhine no longer can afford to live in medieval splendor. Most of them are scrambling to sell out—fast and cheap.

Those who can't sell out at once are trying to rent their lofty river castles until they find a buyer.

For example, you can lease a stone fortress overlooking the Rhine at nearby Oberwesel for just $25 a month. As castles go, it's a dream. Also, as Rhine castles go, it comes without heating, without electricity and with a dearth of furnishings.

That's the rub about these romantic castles. Couples strolling the Rhine in the moonlight sigh for medieval romance. However, the tax-harried noblemen who inhabit the castles say they are cold, dreary places to live in.

West Germany's frayed nobility most of whom are long on titles and short on cash, are rushing to sell out their uncomfortable glams—or before the word gets around that a Rhine castle is really a pretty dreary piece of real estate. Baron Lichtenberg, who rattles around in the 50-room Bottwartal castle, is offering to sell his draughty property by the piece. He will dismantle his castle and ship it stone by stone to any location. The cost: Seven cents a stone, and you pay the postage. The Rhine nobleman hopes to interest some Texas oil millionaire.

West Germany has 10,000 castles, half of them on or near the Rhine. The forbears of today's proprietors found a Rhine fortress a good investment because they could levy tribute on Rhine shipping or plunder the craft of those who refused to come across.

Some of the castles have been modernized, but they still are draughty, gloomy and cost a fortune to keep up. A few noblemen occupy their renovated hilltop citadels. However, the rest have converted their romantic properties into museums and restaurants.

Some of the owners have sold the tableware, tapestries, armor and other furnishings and then abandoned the stripped castle.

The West German federal and state governments have begun to take belated interest in the plight of the castle-owning class. State funds are being allotted to the Association for the Preservation of German Castles.

A nation-wide survey now is under way to determine what should be done about Germany's mouldering medieval monuments. Since there is little chance that many of the castles can be loaded on foreign millionaires, it is likely the various state governments will patch up most of the structures as tourist attractions.

In East Germany, which abound in castles, there is no longer any problem. The Communists razed most of the storied structures early in the occupation to get building materials (so they said) for construction of "workers' housing."

Meanwhile, in West Germany, you can rent almost any castle for a song. Just recently the Duke of Kumbach listed his family home. For 200 marks ($50) a month you can rent 25 rooms with a large park in one of West Germany's most scenic settings—in Upper Franconia, near Würzburg. Army Capt. Henry M. Rodney lives in a 40-room castle, Sommerod, near Ansbach. He pays just $150 a month, which includes utilities, eight maids, private motor and drawbridge and the beautiful ghost of Baroness von Crailsheim who, according to legend, was buried alive 300 years ago.

Railway provides baby bottles

Some railroad men recently upheld a tradition that not only the mail but baby bottles "must go through."

A conductor on the Milwaukee Road-Union Pacific speed train, the Challenger, discovered that bottles of two babies aboard had been broken.

At Elgin, the conductor tossed off a "butterfly"—in railroad jargon, a message attached to a rolled newspaper and thrown from a moving train onto a station platform.

The message was relayed ahead to Savanna, Ill., where dispatcher Z. G. Ruff not only had bottle ready for the distressed mother, but also a quart of milk.

WEEKLY BIBLE COMMENT

SYNOPTIC GOSPELS SHOW REAL GLORY IN LIFE OF CHRIST

The Synoptic Gospels are the first three, namely, Matthew, Mark and Luke. They are so called because they give a synopsis of events and incidents in the life of Jesus, as distinguished from the Gospel of John. This fourth Gospel is not so much a running detailed story of events as with interpretation of the life and teachings.

While Matthew, Mark and Luke have a common framework and are in substantial agreement, each Gospel is of distinctive character, and each fills in some details that the others may lack.

But the real truth, the real beauty and the real glory of all that pertains to Christ and the New Testament have come down to us in a framework of historical obscurity. It ought to warn us against attaching too much importance to the frame, as many Christians have tended to do, to the loss of inadequate appreciation of the truth, the beauty and the glory that have persisted and that are available for us all.

How little we know concerning the life of Jesus in terms of what might be called "modern biography!" And yet, how vividly and epically the New Testament gives us all that is essential! Could the picture of Jesus stand out more clearly if, instead of these simple Gospels, we had an enormous biography, such as is written about almost every famous man of today?

Could the Jesus come to and to give the world have been made to stand out so boldly and so challengingly if the story of His life had been loaded down with all manner of unimportant details? The marvelous thing is that these Gospels have been written with such restraint and with such care, where so much could easily have been filled in by the authors to exploit their own literary skill.

Flying "saucer" fully identified

A number of people headed home from parties in Milwaukee recently called newspapers to report a brilliant light over Lake Michigan. They say it was about the size of a car's headlight, that it was around 3,000 feet in the air and circling slowly to the south. Most of them said they do not know what kind of festivities they had attended—thought it was a flying saucer.

It was actually the planet Venus and a description was reasonably accurate, except that Venus at the time was an estimated 43 million miles or so from the earth. The Milwaukee Journal solemnly asserts that Venus was mistaken for something else by the crew of a merchant ship when the planet rose from the sea during the Second World War. They opened up and the navy gunnery officer was honest in logging the incident. He wrote: "Fired three rounds 5-inch 50 at planet Venus. All fell short."

In any event, it is nice to have at least one "flying saucer" fully identified.

MEAT TYPE

Nearly 20 percent of American hogs marketed last year were of the approved "meat type," compared to only 10 percent in 1954.

Masonry paint on walls helps keep basement dry

Fall is "fix-up" time and the inundation of basements in many areas has brought a new surge of activity beneath the ground level. Hundreds of basements are being water-proofed and converted into "do it yourself" workshops, recreation centers, utility rooms, and laundries.

Rejuvenating clothes

What a difference a good press job makes! It immediately conveys the neat, clean look. That is because spots must first be removed, wrinkles are abolished and most of the original texture of the garment is restored. To help lighten your dreaded pressing chores Miss H. Moseon, clothing specialist at Alberta Department of Agriculture sends along a few hints.

Pressing differs from ironing in that the motion is a lower and lift one rather than a sliding motion. A light touch should be used and care taken that the garment is not overpressed. First test the heat of the iron on an underneath seam allowance. Then to avoid the imprint of a hemline, press from right side over extra padding such as a turkish towel. This pressing over a soft surface also prevents a shiny zipper placket. Use strips of paper under seam allowances that tend to mark the right side of the fabric.

Pressing is usually done on the wrong side of the garment with moisture supplied either with a steam iron or a damp press cloth. If some parts of the dress need right side pressing, protect the fabric from the heat of the iron and prevent shining by placing a dry press cloth over fabric before steaming it. A good right side press cloth is a soft wool one. That brings to mind woolen or wool like fabrics, which should be brushed to raise the nap prior to pressing.

As a general rule, press from wide to narrow part of the dress sections, for example, from the hem to the waistline of the skirt, armhole to waistline of blouse, armhole to bottom of sleeve. Press with the grain of the material whenever possible.

As a finishing touch, place the pressed garment on a well-shaded hanger and leave until well aired and completely dry. That "out of a handbox look" now belongs to you.

Household words

It is a lot of fun to read about the different "family words" they are so original and always give us a good chuckle. Our son, when still preschool age, coined the one most popularly used around our ranch.

He was particularly fond of raw carrots, firm and very crisp, during that before-supper period when the aroma of cooking food makes one famished. One evening I gave him a carrot from the cellophane bag in the refrigerator. He turned it over in his hands a few times, finally took a small bite and handed it back.

"It doesn't taste good, Mother," he explained. "It's 'fleepy'." I examined it and found it rather wilted, with much of its zesty flavor gone. Since then, anything in an unrefined condition, from a jaded head of lettuce to a crumpled shirt collar, is "fleepy." —Christian Science Monitor Ordinary goldfish live about 50 years while fancy ones, like the fringe-tail, about seven years.

Many fix-uppers include teenagers who are looking forward to the big winter frolics. There are plans for hobby rooms and student "museums" in many homes.

With masonry paint now available in a wide variety of colors, homeowners are finding that attractive rooms for many purposes are possible in their basements.

Ingenuous youngsters in a Michigan community have completed what they call their "marine room" by painting a rippling blue-and-white water pattern with brilliant colored fishes on the walls. They have acquired an old upright piano which they have painted to match the walls and their mother has put up sea-blue drapes with a ship design.

On the foot they have painted a shuffleboard pattern. This winter the "marine room" will be the fun center for a lot of youngsters in the neighborhood.

While they are "doing over" the basement, some householders will give their walls a flagstone effect with the masonry paint or paint a shuffleboard pattern in the patio.

Martin Kennedy has some suggestions for waterproofing basements in attractive colors.

He recommends that a first step before using masonry paint is to thoroughly clean the walls, giving them a "brisk going over" with a wire brush and then washing them down. He said that any efflorescence (that's a high sounding word for salts the masonry) can be removed with etching acid and then neutralized with rinse water. If there's whitewash or calcimine on the walls this must be removed. A good scrubbing with hot water should do the job.

Water-soluble, resin-based paints can be removed by a 20 percent solution of muriatic acid and rinse water, while oil-based paints require one pound of kerosene to a gallon of water. In both cases, Mr. Kennedy advised using rubber gloves to protect the hands from strong solutions.

A bond between the wall and the masonry paint is obtained if all previous paint is first removed.

The next step—lightly dampen the walls (after they have dried out from the cleaning) before the application of paint. He emphasized that the masonry must not be soaked, merely wetted down.

It is recommended that the paint be applied with a scrubbing brush, being careful to fill all depressions and small cracks. Scrub the paint into the corner formed by the wall and the floor coating at least an inch of the floor along the wall. —Christian Science Monitor.

Love thy neighbor their order!

Members of a controversial religious sect have been ordered to obey a religious commandment. A member of the sect revealed in court that four families were exchanging wives according to the tenets of "original" church doctrine. The commandment they were obeying is: "Love thy neighbor."

British soldiers vacation in Israel

British youth, who a few years ago were forbidden by their parents from visiting Israel because it was "too dangerous" a country are now holidaying there on short leaves from army duty in Cyprus. Hon. Yehuda Gaulan, Consul General of Israel told the opening luncheon of the National Council of Jewish Women, Montreal Section.

"War is not the solution for the current Middle East situation," he said. "It takes longer to build than to destroy. Israel does not want war, but for eight years our country has been able to show its military strength, and we are prepared to continue that military strength as long as any form of extermination to us as a country remains."

Half a million Jews, mainly from North Africa, but also from behind the Iron Curtain, found a home in Israel last year. But in order to keep this number constant and in order to meet present defence needs, Israel needs the support of Jews all over the world, he continued.

JUNIOR FIRST AID

When children acquire cuts, burns and scratches, they may continue to play in the dirt unless they are taught that such injuries should be kept free from dirt and germs. It is a good idea to teach bigger children the elementary principles of first aid so that they can clean and cover these injuries with a dressing. The handy ready-made dressings should be kept available in the home where any member of the family can use them.

RABBIS FROM EUROPE

Rabbits were unknown in England until introduced from Central Europe in the 12th century.

VARIETY IN HAT STYLES is the order of the day for Princess Margaret during her tour of East Africa. At present she is on a 10-day visit to Tanganyika. Others tell us . . .

Canada, it seems, is in danger of becoming too prosperous. Canadians are trying to do too much in too little time. At least, that is what James Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada, believes. He has asked business men and others to slow down their building plans because there are not enough supplies and workers for the total $8 billion program of construction this year.—Physical resources and facilities could not take care of the requirements of a program of that size.

If the builders have to compete for materials and labor, of course, the cost of both starts to climb. There is enough inflationary pressure on the economy already. So Mr. Coyne's warning is sensible and simple. But not so simple is the translation of his theory into practice.

This year's construction program is made up of thousands of projects—New factories and additions to old ones, new roads, bridges, schools, houses, pipelines, powerhouses, seaways. The municipal, provincial and Federal governments are responsible for a very large part of the program. Should the industrialists put off their plans until 1957 or 1958 to help the governments complete their projects? If they do, they may weaken their competitive position enough to make them unable to do next year or the year after what they want to do now, or the cost of building in 1957 may be too great. What is more important to the well-being of Canadians in 1956, more houses or more military construction?

Leadership is needed to clarify the situation, and that leadership should come from the Federal government, the biggest spender as well as the biggest revenue collector. It could show the way by cutting the fat from its own bloated program. Much of the $1,775 million allotted the Department of National Defence, for example, is going into construction. Is it all necessary this year. Could not a substantial portion be put off for a while? Defence Minister Campbell refuses to let even Parliament get a glimpse of what his department is doing, but on the word of at least two responsible generals there is plenty of waste and mismanagement.

Provincial and municipal governments generally faced with projects of more urgency, are not likely to trim their plans while Federal authorities go on spending, nor is the business man inclined to put a brake.

EAT TO AVOID ANAEMIA

Foods that are rich in iron, such as liver, kidney, beef, eggs, whole grain cereals, raisins, and dried apricots, help to keep the blood in good rich condition. To prevent anaemia, these foods should have a prominent place in the daily diet.

Saving yourself from fire

What would you do—what would your family do if fire should strike home at the most few seconds? How would you save yourself from painful burns and even death?

It's worth your life to know the right answers, said provincial Fire Commissioner Ross Switzer in passing along this Fire Prevention Week advice on saving yourself from fire.

1. Get out of the house the minute you discover a fire or smell smoke.
2. Don't fling open doors if you think there's a fire—feel the door first. It feels hot, you are safer in your room. If the door is cool and there is no pressure, you may crawl through the hallway to safety.

3. If the door is hot, block it with furniture or a mattress (preferably wet) to keep out dangerous smoke and gases. Stuff the crack beneath the door with a wet cloth or sheet. Open the bedroom window slightly, and call for help.

4. Remember the floor is usually better than the ceiling in a smoke-filled building.

5. Hold your breath and cover your face if you have to make a dash through fire or smoke.

6. Don't jump or drop from upper-storey windows except as a last resort—wait for firemen.

7. Never go back into a burning building for any reason—smoke and fire gases from even the smallest fire can be deadly.

8. Unless it's a small fire that you're certain you can control with the right extinguisher, get away from it and call the fire department at once.

9. Always be prepared to use different escape routes from your home in case of fire—important to remember too, when entering any other building.

10. If you're burned or exposed to fire and smoke, get medical treatment as soon as possible; seemingly minor burns or smoke inhalation can have serious results.

"TIDE RIPS"

By Jim Branham

The much worn saying "Crime does not pay" was much more than a saying to the sailors in the Navy of King John of England.

His naval law was founded on the laws of Oleron. In fact, our present naval discipline Act can trace its ancestry back to these laws. The code adopted in Castile in the 13th century during the reign of Alfonso X, and was brought back to England by Richard I on his return from a Crusade to the Holy Land.

The code of Oleron, although in our time must be considered extremely harsh and brutal, was written to combat the lawlessness of that day and age.

"Whoever shall commit murder aboard ship shall be tied to the corpse and thrown into the sea."

"If a murder be committed on land, the murderer shall be tied to the corpse and buried alive."

"If any man be convicted of drawing a knife for the purpose of stabbing another, or shall have stabbed another so that blood shall flow he shall lose a hand."

"If a man strike another with his hand, he shall be ducked 3 times in the sea."

"If any man defame, villify, or swear at his fellow, he shall pay him as many ounces of silver as times he has reviled him." Fines are levied in the Royal Canadian Navy of today for certain offences.

"If a robber be convicted of theft, boiling pitch shall be poured over his head and a shower of feathers be shaken over him, and he shall be cast ashore at the first land at which the fleet shall touch."

"These laws may seem pretty rough, but at the time of the Crusades, there were some pretty rough characters sailing the seas."

The W.A. of St. Mary's will hold a home cooking and farm produce sale, also a "parcel post sale" in the Irma Food Market on Saturday, December 8.

Wedding Bells

DAWSON — HEIBERG

A pretty fall wedding took place in the Camrose Lutheran church on Wednesday, October 3 at 4 p.m. when Rev. M. Vinge officiated. A double ring ceremony which united in marriage Marie Magdalene, only daughter of Mrs. Ragna G. Heiberg, and the late Mr. Heiberg of Kingman, to Merle Everett, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Dawson of Killam.

Entering the church to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Mrs. A. Heiberg, the bride was given in marriage by her eldest brother Andreas. She was lovely in her floor length white gown with modified bolero with which she wore a fingertip veil and carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses and ivy. Her only jewellery was pearl earrings, a gift of the groom.

Attending the bride as matron of honor was the sister of the groom, Mrs. Joyce Shepherd of Hinton, and Miss Oma Marler of Edmonton as bridesmaid. Both attendants wore identical champagne colored lace gowns in cocktail length and carried cascade bouquets of white mums, with matching flower bandes in their hair.

The flower girl, Sharyl Martz of Camrose, was charming in a floor length gown of yellow nylon trimmed with white lace. She carried a basket of mixed flowers and wore flowers in her hair.

Groomsmen were Mr. Stanley Nafe, of Red Deer, and Mr. Ernie George of Tofield. Ring bearer was Master Lyle Heiberg, nephew of the bride. Ushers were Eysteine Heiberg of Kingman, brother of the bride, and Andrew Shepherd of Hinton, brother-in-law of the groom.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Andreas Heiberg sang A Wedding Prayer, accompanied by Mrs. Clarence Magnuson of Camrose.

Following the ceremony a reception for 70 was held in the church parlors, at which time the bride's mother received the guests. She chose for her daughter's wedding a wine dress with gold accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

The groom's mother wore a blue crepe dress with pink accessories and pink roses on corsage.

The bride's table was centred with a three tiered cake and also a Norwegian wedding cake baked by the bride's mother.

Master of ceremonies was Rev. H. Haugen of Kingman. During the reception Mr. Ingvold Ness sang My Hero and Mrs. G. Regher and Mrs. B. Erickson sang O Promise Me. Mr. Clarence Magnuson proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom responded.

Telegrams were received from Oslo, Norway, Vancouver, New York, Peace River and Jasper.

For a honeymoon trip to the Western U.S. the bride changed to a beige tweed suit, with green and brown accessories and corsage of yellow roses.

When they return the happy couple will take up residence in Peace River.

Here's what keeps the price

low

Why have wholesale gasoline prices increased only one-third as much as wholesale prices in general since 1935-1939?

Raw material and other costs have gone 'way up.
Why not gasoline?

Gasoline prices have stayed down because a lot of companies are in the oil business—producing, refining and selling, more and more efficiently.

The consumer can shop

Competition for the

We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,

Loved and were loved, and now we lie

In Flanders' fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!

To you from failing hands we throw

The torch. Be yours to lift it high!

If ye break faith with us who die

We shall not sleep, though poppies blow

In Flanders' fields.

Over 200 People Attend Dinner

(From The Viking News)

Over 200 people attended the Lutheran E.M.V. Congregational Dinner held last Sunday, Nov. 4, in the Viking Community Hall.
The Golden Valley and Scandinavia congregations were well represented and the dinner and program were well received by those present.

Pastor J. Precht introduced the General Chairman, Mr. Sam Klein, who welcomed all present and called upon Mr. S. Lesrud, Mr. C. A. Nordstrom, Mrs.
Geo. Walker, Mr. Klifford West-by, General Chairman of Scandinavia, Mr. Eddy Thompson, as well as Mr. Klein, who spoke briefly of the Task, Strength, Program, Plan and Start of the Golden Valley and Scandinavia Churches in connection with the Every-Member-Visit program.
These enlightening talks revealed to all what the E.M.V. organization is striving to do and presented a challenge of their faith in God to carry out His work.

Three selections by the Viking choir under the direction of Mrs.
S. Lesrud were very well presented. A film entitled "The Measure" was shown and provided very educational in regard to the many departments of the church, how funds received from congregations are spent, and the value of Christian Stewardship starting from the individual up to synodical level.

Before the Closing Prayer and Benediction, Pastor Precht spoke on the next phase of the E.M.V. program—making our commitments to God. Teams of visitors will be visiting members and associate members of the Lutheran church next Sunday, Nov.
11 and he requested their cooperation in this respect.

General chairman, Mr. Sam
Klein, and his committee chairmen were very pleased with the response of those who accepted the invitation to attend the dinner and wish to convey their appreciation and thanks to all who helped in any way in connection with the event, also to Tom Bruha and his very capable helpers who served the food in such a fine and satisfactory manner.

Echo-Rodino

Mr. and Mrs. A. Beckett motored to Wainwright this week.

Mrs. G. Hollar and Miss Blanche Simmonds were each awarded a Consolation Prize Voucher of $20.00 by the Board of Judges of the Ford Household Appliances of Toronto recently.

F. Brown and L. Daniel have gone to Hinton for the winter.

Victor and Louie Martin are at Mildred, Sask., to see their father who is seriously ill in hospital.

Visitors to the city this week were Mr. and Mrs. R. Hollar, C.
Hollar, Mr. and Mrs. L. Pyke.

G. Thomas and A. Beckett went to Camrose. While there they visited with Kenneth Ray-ment (formerly of Rodino) who is now a dentist.

Young Tommy Winfield broke his leg while out herding cattle, when his horse fell and rolled on him.

The parents attended the children's Halloween masquerade and dance at Albert school Friday night. Ronnie Shipley as a sedate country gentleman and Goldie Hunter as the bride dressed in traditional white gown and veil and carrying a bouquet, made up the best entry for first prize. Lorna Prosser took the prize for the hilarious costume.
She was dressed in the black attire of the old witch and performed amusingly before the crowd.

Little Joan Prior received the prize in the toddlers group for her display as a white kitten.
Many other beautiful and comical regalia were worn which made a tough decision for the judges.

News Report From Edmonton

By Ken Mason

EDMONTON — They've already started working behind the scenes to set the stage for the 1967 session of the legislature, even though hostilities don't start for more than 3 months.

Naturally most of the work is of a highly secret nature at this point, but there have been a few indications of what can be expected in the way of major issues to confront the 61 members when they gather in February.

Municipal Affairs Minister Al Hooke has disclosed that he plans to introduce sweeping changes in the province's municipal legislation, relaxing and in some cases eliminating the restrictions now exercised by senior government over the actions of local councils.

Over the years scores of clauses have been written into municipal acts, requiring that local councils obtain the approval of the minister or of a cabinet before doing certain things.

Mr. Hooke says many of these requirements will be thrown out.
As it stands now, he says, there are many inconsistencies. Municipalities can take some important steps without government consent, but others no more important require the blessing of the province.

As a result, there likely will be changes in the City Act, the Town and Village Act, the MD Act, the County Act and perhaps some others.

Indications are that there won't be any legislation to implement any measures which may arise out of the current review of the municipal-provincial tax and revenue structure.

Provincial Treasurer Ted Hinman says that while progress is being made by the committee of government officials and municipal leaders, there won't be time to prepare any legislation for the 1967 session. So in all likelihood Mr. Hinman's budget won't contain any major surprises.

However, that doesn't mean there won't be plenty of talk.
Before the session is over, Albertans may know whether they will have to pay a sales tax or some other type of additional tax to meet growing municipal budgets.

There likely will be amendments to the Liquor Control Act, and if so they will undoubtedly comprise the biggest single issue of the session.

The eight-member legislative committee studying the liquor laws should have its report ready sometime in February, which will leave plenty of time to prepare the legislation needed to implement any changes which are recommended.

Members of the committee are meeting daily behind closed doors in the Legislative Building to write out their findings.

The Stettler constituency by-election slated for November 15 has developed into a two-way race between two arch-rivals—the Social Credit party and the Liberal party.

Galen C. Norris, 40-year-old livestock dealer from Erskine, is carrying the banner for Social Credit, while his opponent is 32-year-old Murray Rainden, a farmer and cattle breeder from Stettler.

It will probably be more interesting as a two-way battle, because for the first time since the 1920s voters will be marking their ballots with the "X" rather than with numbers under the trustworthy ballot system.

With only two candidates in the field, the winner will have to gain a clear majority of the votes. It will be impossible for one candidate to win with less than 50 percent because of the other votes being split among two or more candidates.

A lively campaign can be expected, because both parties would dearly love to win the Stettler seat. Social Credit has only 36 members now, compared with 51 in the last legislature, so Premier Manning needs all the support he can get. The Liberals want the seat if only to prove that their increase in strength in the 1955 election was no fluke.

Handling straw in fall tillage

The method of handling straw, according to D. A. Dew of the LaCombe Experimental Farm, Canada Department of Agriculture, is a problem in stubble land management which must be seriously considered in the fall if a suitable seed bed is to be expected the following spring.

In the black soil zone a rank growth of straw is usually encountered which must be decomposed as rapidly as possible or handled in some other manner. Many farmers swath the crop fairly short and collect the straw behind the combine by bunching or baling. If all the straw is returned to the land there should be an effective straw spreader on the combine. If the straw spreader doesn't do a good job, Mr. Dew suggests that a stroke with oscillating harrows will help spread the straw more uniformly. A straw chopper is actually more effective than a straw spreader and can easily be attached to most combines.

The selection of the tillage implement for fall tillage will depend on the amount of trash on the surface. Some trash should be left for wind and water erosion control, although trash which is partly buried will normally serve this purpose. The one-way disc is the logical choice if the trash is on the heavy side since it will mix up to 50 percent of the trash with the surface two or three inches of soil. Straw mixed with the surface soil is more quickly decomposed than that laying on the surface or buried deeply.

A cultivator, either duckfoot or heavy duty type will handle smaller volumes of straw since these machines leave a larger percentage on the surface. Cultivators will mix from 20 to 40 percent of the trash with the top two or three inches of soil. Heavy duty cultivators have greater trash clearance and leave more trash on the surface.

Strange fish identified

A strange fish found some time ago in the Souris river near the Midale Dam has proven to be the Tadpole Madtom, a fish never before found in Saskatchewan, Fred Bard, director of the Saskatchewan Museum of Natural History, said.

When found it was believed by museum authorities to be the black or the brown bullhead, and was forwarded to the University of Saskatchewan for positive identification by P. M. Atton, a member of the fisheries laboratory.

The difference between the Bullhead and the Tadpole Madtom is so minute that only fish experts would be able to tell them apart. Like the Bullhead, the fish has a heavy head, no scales, whiskers or tentacles on the lower jaw, a wide mouth, many sharp teeth and strong jaws, and is also a member of the catfish family.

It is five inches long and has a dorsal fin and two pectoral fins with sharp needle-like spines. The main difference between it and the Bullhead is that a tiny fin on the back is joined to the tailfin.

The fish was caught in the Souris river in July by J. K. Frederickson of Weyburn.

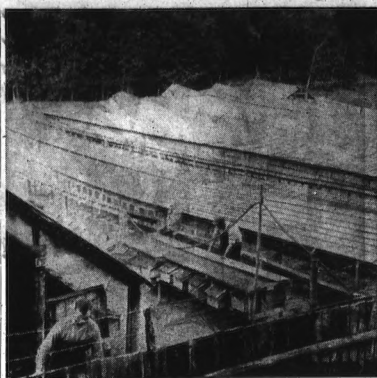

Dr. Robert W. Nero, assistant director of the museum, suggests that anyone sending fish specimens to the museum should send them in a jar preserved with alcohol or some other preservative.

Mink ranching in Saskatchewan's northwest

Holvor Auslund is a big man (six feet, two inches; 220 pounds), who likes to do things in a big way. He came to the north country 37 years ago with nothing but his name but a rifle, canoe and a few traps. Today, he's the biggest mink rancher in northern Saskatchewan.

His ranch is on the Macbeth Channel, about midway between Buffalo Narrows and Ile a la Crosse. It's an elaborate setup—a dozen buildings and several block-long rows of mink pens, representing an investment Auslund says is in the neighborhood of $150,000.

Auslund is 54, married, with a family of four girls and two boys, one of whom is recently set up in the mink ranching business.

He has made mink ranching—which he started in the late thirties—a science, developing several new and highly popular "mutations" and has done more than any other single person for the industry in this region.

He says he got where he is through hard work, constant study and research. He drives himself and his help hard and has no time for slacks.

The hardest work comes during the morning and evening feedings. The rest of the time, there are pens to build and mend, fish to catch, and machines and equipment to maintain. It's a busy life.

Hard work and shrewd planning has brought Auslund big returns in recent years. He doesn't disclose what he makes annually, but some idea of this might be gained from the fact that his income tax tab last year was $7,000.

Auslund keeps about 2,000 mink, with some 400 of these breeder females. This November, he will sell about 1,400 of the exquisitely-furred beasts, receiving as much as $400 apiece for rare mutations.

He claims mink ranchers must go into mutations (creating different color shades through selective breeding) to be successful, nowadays. Among mutations he has successfully established are sapphires, pearl topaz and buff. The pelt of a "standard" mink is a brown-black color.

"We're always striving to develop better mink," says Auslund, speaking for himself and fellow ranchers. It takes an average of four years of careful breeding to develop a new mutation. Many of his mink are sold live, as breeders, to other ranchers in the region and, for that matter, to ranchers all over North America.

He has lost surprisingly few mink over the years and maintains that the biggest losses suffered by ranchers are usually due to carelessness. He says that with proper precautions, mortality from diseases and other causes can be practically eliminated.

Feeding 2,000 mink daily is quite a job, but Auslund has mechanized and streamlined the process to a point where he and five helpers can do it in two hours. To ground fish, the principal ingredient of mink food, he adds herring, mycin, bone meal, wheat germ, milk and vitamins.

Auslund's grinding house boasts "the world's biggest grinder." It was manufactured to his specifications and can turn out 3,000 pounds of ground fish an hour. Almost as impressive is his mixing machine, which can mix 4,000 pounds of finished mink meal an hour. He mixes 1,100 pounds of meal for an evening feeding.

Auslund thinks there's a big future for mink ranching in the Buffalo region. The remote environment, combined with the abundance and easy availability of rough fish (he uses more than 100,000 pounds yearly), are among the most desirable factors here.

Actually, the mink ranching industry has been growing by leaps and bounds in the Buffalo region, with 51 ranches operating now, compared to only eight, in 1945.

A hand to hold
A military general once received from Wellington a hard assignment. The general said to Wellington, "Before I go, let me shake your hand. I want with me the touch of the conquering hand."

Our Lord gives us its difficult assignments. In fact they are too much for us. But He gives to us also His conquering hand, not to touch and leave, but a conquering hand to hold while we do the difficult thing.

He said, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

Honors, rewards for dog heroes

Dog lovers and those who admire a hero will be interested in hearing of Penny, a German shepherd from Elmore, Minn., who is a runner-up for the title of the most heroic dog of 1956. Penny drove off a 547-pound bear that attacked her master, Tom Dahl, Jr., when he went to feed his hogs. The bear suddenly attacked Dahl, knocked him to the ground. Penny jumped over a high fence, pounced on the back of the animal that was repeatedly attacking the now prone farmer, and forced the bear to another side of the yard. A $1,000 bond, a gold-plated leash and collar, a gold plaque, a dog blanket and a year's supply of dog food await Penny. (Let's hope Penny likes dog food and that she will enjoy a trip to Chicago to receive the reward.) Something tells me Penny would be happier home on the farm at Elmore.

There are four other competitors, a sheep dog who brought help to an injured boy, a mongrel who rescued a child lost in a woods, a mixbreed who saved a boy trapped in a swamp and a retriever who attacked a rattlesnake ready to strike a child. Second, third, fourth and fifth-place winners get bonds of smaller denominations and silver collars, medals and six months supply of dog feed.

The use to which paper has been put in the last few years is staggering. Imagine a romper-type bathing suit or even a strapless evening gown made of paper! Yet it has been done and will, in a few years become quite common. Both of these have been made as soft as our well-known Kleenex, but have been made exceedingly strong by super-wet strength treatment and by reinforcing with a cross-laid rayon or rayon threads. Just think of caps and gowns for graduation which will be cheap enough to be used once and then thrown away.

Show fences or reinforced kraft paper fastened to metal posts have been used successfully. Paperboard containers and packages that will withstand exceedingly high temperatures, in which frozen foods are sold, cooked and served are now in daily use.

Seat covers, furniture upholstery materials, paper bags (noiseless) for popcorn eaters in theatres as well as non-rattling script paper for use in radio and TV studios are now available.

A new paper towel that also serves as soap and water has already found its place on many airlines. Creped wet-strength paper toweling, saturated with a skin-cleansing lotion is wet until taken out of its aluminum-foil sealed envelope. After use the lotion evaporates in a few seconds leaving the skin cool and dry.

A new self-adhering wallpaper which sticks without wetting or gluing, a wallpaper which incorporates a fly-killing insecticide and a wallpaper which repels dirt are becoming common-place for the home-maker.

A new paper garbage container which can hold up to fifty pounds of wet garbage is now in the market and should prove extremely useful.

Funny and Otherwise

It is pretty hard for a woman to buy shoes that fit the occasion and also her feet.

The soldier had been out on a spree, and to finish with, he hired a taxi. Unfortunately, when the taxi came to a stop, he found that he hadn't a cent left and he explained to the driver, "That's the position, old man, and you can't get blood out of a stone."

"No," agreed the 6-ft., 4-in. taxi driver, rolling up his sleeves ominously, "but what makes you think you're a stone?"

The head of Wall Street brokerage firm observed, "When I stroll through the typing department, it's like a piece of uranium approaching a battery of Geiger counters. The closer I get to those girls, the faster they click!"

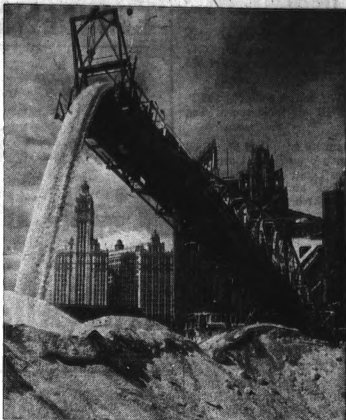

An eccentric member of a country club in Iowa often comes to dinner with a yacht captain's hat on his head, though the only body of water within a radius of a hundred miles is the bird bath in the town plaza. "I come from a seafaring family," he explains. "My father was hailed as 'The Old Skipper'." "That's right," agrees his long-suffering wife grimly, "particularly by landlords and the finance company."

New definition of a typical father: A man whose daughter marries a man vastly her inferior mentally but then gives birth to unbelievably brilliant grandchildren.

CITY WORTH ITS SALT—Harbinger of winter is the arrival of 5,500 tons of rock salt for deicing Chicago's streets, an important phase of the city's traffic safety program. Giant "saltcellars" unload a freighter in the Windy City, above, with Chicago's famed landmark, the Wrigley Building, in background.

Bush pilot builds Pakistan airline under Colombo plan

(By A. R. Winstan, Victoria, B.C.)

Canada long had to import men with technical and professional know-how to help open its vast wilderness areas, find and develop its resources and to instruct young people in the arts and crafts.

Now that practice has been reversed and Canadians are crossing the seas in increasing numbers to help other nations build and exploit their resources, The Colombo plan is an example on a gigantic scale of what Canadian capital and know-how is doing in Asia's underdeveloped countries.

The bush pilot is as Canadian as the Mountie and it was to be expected that he would be called on, sooner or later, to contribute their skill to air transport developments in other parts of the world.

In 1953 Pakistan sought such a man and requested the International Civil Aviation Organization's Montreal headquarters to recommend one. The choice fell on Maurice McGregor, a Victoria bush flying veteran with 25 years' experience as a pilot, chief pilot, chief of flight operations and director of overseas planning with major Canadian airlines.

McGregor arrived in Karachi in April of 1955 to find himself charged with setting up, almost from scratch, a national airline through a merger with a private line, in difficulties, with the beginnings of a government-owned line consisting only of some money and a few planes.

A bush flier in the classical tradition, McGregor had been prepared from his earliest years in the air for this job. His career—he is still only 45—has been an occupation to the usual experience in aviation—an industry where a man is turned out when he is too old to fly or given limited responsibilities in other branches of the industry.

His experience, gained along the fringes of the rugged B.C. coast, in the interior, and on trans-Atlantic and Caribbean routes, was an incomparable background.

In Karachi he hired Netherlands pilots and experts of other nationalities to start the training program for crews and engineers, maintenance men and traffic controllers. His foreign experts trained Pakistanis in navigation, instrument flying and the uses of communications.

Pakistan International Airlines came into existence legally late in 1954. Schedules within the country linked Karachi with Decca, in East Pakistan, Feshawar, Rawalpindi, Lahore, Multan, New Delhi, Bombay and Rangoon. A 17-hour service linked Karachi with London, with the only stop at Cairo—the fastest London-Karachi service.

In 18 months, McGregor's job was done. The airline was running. It needed only experience, and expansion.

In Washington, McGregor convinced the Foreign Operations Administration of the growing airline's importance and arranged a grant of several million dollars for an expanded training scheme and a program of airport development.

Then Maurice McGregor took off for Canada. His export product, aviation know-how, was in use overseas. And he had finished another phase in the education of an aviator.

New date will beat heartache

What should a teenage girl do when she falls in love with a boy and he turns her down in favor of another girl? Get madly jealous?

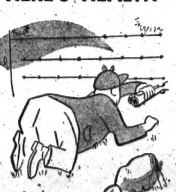

Not at all, says a leading psychiatrist who is an expert in teenage love affairs. The girl should deliberately set about blotting the episode from her mind. She should at once burn the boy's love letters, all of them, however ardent they are. Then she should calmly destroy all photographs of him and get rid of other souvenirs.

Having done these things she should set about getting as many dates with other boys as possible. She will quickly discover that a new boy friend by her side at least partially banishes ghosts of the past. By repeating the process over successive days, she is "helping" Father Time to free her from the fetters of her past romance.

Frustrated love can be conquered like any other bad habit, the expert points out. It is utterly folly for a jilted girl to plead with her former sweetheart or make a scene by hurling into tears when she sees him.

About two-thirds of the human race use wood for cooking fuel.

Mt. Everest's conqueror prepares for an even greater adventure

By ARTHUR SCHOLLES

Sir Edmund Hillary, conqueror of Mt. Everest, is about to enter on an even bigger adventure. He will leave Dunedin on the south island on his way to the Antarctic in December.

Sir Edmund will head a 23-man New Zealand scientific team which will participate in International Geophysical Year assignments, and also in the attempt of the British Commonwealth expedition to cross Antarctica for the first time.

Three New Zealand observers accompanied the U.S. Deepfreeze expedition to the Antarctic in December last year. They selected a site for the New Zealand base camp in McMurdo sound in the Ross sea.

The New Zealanders have called their camp, Scott Base, in honor of the famed British explorer, Capt. Robert Scott, who perished on his way back from the South Pole in 1912.

The Commonwealth Transantarctic expedition will attempt the crossing from the Weddell sea, 2,000 miles to the Ross sea, during the Antarctic summer of 1957-1958 (November to March).

The advance party from London established a base on the icy coastline of the Weddell sea in January, this year. The camp there is called Shackleton Base in memory of Sir Ernest Shackleton, who attempted the first crossing of the Antarctic continent in 1915-1916.

Sir Ernest Shackleton's ship, Endeavour, was crushed in the ice, and after 18 months of hair-raising adventure, the survivors managed to reach the safety of South Georgia island.

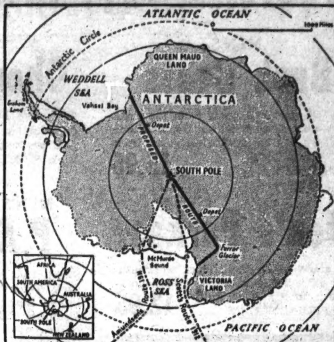

The Commonwealth expedition under the leadership of Sir Vivian Fuchs will leave Shackleton Base in December, 1957, to attempt the crossing.

The expedition will be met on the polar plateau by Sir Edmund and his team of New Zealanders, who will have prepared depots and supply dumps for the remainder of the route to Scott Base on the Ross sea side.

When Sir Edmund sails from New Zealand for the Ross sea at the end of this year, he will be aboard a New Zealand exploration ship also named the Endeavour.

The cost of the Commonwealth Transantarctic expedition will be about $1.5 million. The expenses are being borne by the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand and South African governments.

The crossing party will have both land and air transport. Four

Route of Antarctic Crossing by Commonwealth men of the Royal Air Force with two Alouette aircraft, specially equipped with skis and floats, accompanied the advance party. They will accompany the main party next year.

Four U.S. produced heavy-tracked vehicles, known as "Snowcats", will be used for the cold continental crossing. United Kingdom will provide vehicles, known as "Wen-sel", are also being taken. A modern type of ice-breaking ship, the Magda Dan, is now being built in Copenhagen, Denmark, and will be chartered by the expedition for two years.

Sir Edmund and his team have just completed rigorous pre-expedition training in the icefields and glaciers of the Southern Alps of New Zealand.

Here, 7,000 feet up, in a world of glaciers, and snow-capped mountains, Sir Edmund 10 years ago learned to climb mountains as tough as any in the world—except the Himalayas.

This time the pre-expedition training, including dog sled journeys, air supply dropping, navigation, ski-touring and ice craft, will prove invaluable in the Antarctic. The Scott Base is 800 miles—as the skua gull flies—from the South Pole.

Among the party crossing over from the Weddell sea with Fuchs will be New Zealander George Lowe, who accompanied Hillary to within the last few hundred feet of the world's highest mountain. Hillary and Lowe will meet again on the polar plateau, 10,000 feet up, in one of the most dramatic reunions of the scientific age.

Together with the crossing party, they will return along the string of supply depots previously established between Scott Base and the Pole. The New Zealanders will return to their homeland in March, 1958.

SIR EDMUND HILLARY

TWO STYLE INFLUENCES SPARK NEW TREND IN MEN'S HATS

Two style influences have combined to spark the upsurge of interest in men's headwear for fall, i.e., the flat crown hat and the Ivy cap.

Flat crowns, introduced last spring, were quick to capture the fashion fancy of young men and older men who wish to appear youthful. This converted pork pie model, together with caps in a wide array of fabrics, will make fashion headlines in the new season.

Center crease, tapered crown and narrow brim models have already proved their fashion popularity and will continue to hold their place in the style picture.

Many of these fashions are lighter in weight to insure greater wearing comfort.

Medium tones will be very much more in evidence, this fall. Bands will make use of subtle red stripes and in many models, bows will appear at the back of the hat.

Caps are cut smaller and are better styled than ever before. The cap with strap and buckle at back will appear in handsome tweeds and herringbones as well as in blue, green and tan models.

Blazer stripes and printed corduroys are other versions of this increasingly popular casual cap. For the man whose face is too large or round for these narrow models there will be an ample assortment of medium and large size caps.

Tyrolans are another important entry in the casual picture. Some are smooth in finish, others rough. Many have touches of red in feather, brush and hand decorations.

METROPOLITAN NEWS

Despite bad weather and slippery roads Metropolitan school was full on the afternoon of Oct. 27 when the ladies of the district met to honor bride-elect Miss Wilma Bovenkamp.

Mrs. Owen started the proceedings by requesting each person present to give their reason for being late. As the answers had to contain the initials of the visitor some of the excuses were decidedly fantastic. The reading of the "Story of Wilma's Life," the adjectives for which had been supplied at random by the visitors brought forth much laughter. A kit-bag inspection interspersed with parodies on packing kit bags was much enjoyed especially when Wilma's kit contained, instead of clothes, packages of all shapes and sizes.

After a busy half hour of opening parcels, Wilma thanked all present for their gifts and the kind wishes they expressed. The tea tables were quickly set up and a bounteous repast brought an enjoyable afternoon to a close.

November 12-17 Is F.U.A. WEEK

The co-operation of Alberta farmers will determine the success of this very important Farmers' Union membership drive. The issue is squarely up to the farmers to take this opportunity to build a strong Farmers' Union.

F.U.A. Co-op, organized by farmers to serve farmers in the farm supply field, is keenly interested in the development of a strong Farmers' organization. To get a fair deal for agriculture it is essential to have a farm organization with a membership representing the majority of the Farmers of Alberta.

F.U.A. Co-op strongly urges all farmers and particularly its members to take an active part in F.U.A. Week. Join the Farmers' Union of Alberta. Get your neighbors to join.
